

CTAN got a facelift

Written by Stefan Kottwitz

Wednesday, 12 December 2012 13:28

The CTAN website <http://www.ctan.org/> has been relaunched and shows a new design.

Content and features of the old site old site are now available in a new look and feel. The landing page is more informative, browsing CTAN tree and package catalogue has been improved, the upload form is better, and there's a better handling of CTAN mirrors. By a few clicks you could even change the skin of the web site, to better suit your personal taste.

The existing links have been preserved, so there shouldn't be dead links after this relaunch. For more information and contact information, visit the announcement on ctan-ann .